Generation NeXt Comes to College

Understanding, Teaching and Serving Today's Postmodern Students

Mark Taylor, M.S.W., Ed.D.

Presentation for College/University Faculty,
Administration and Staff
9am to Noon on the Tahlequah campus of NSU

Faculty Development Session
1pm to 4pm - Redbud Room, University Center

The young people of Generation NeXt, who are entering college today, have characteristics and expectations that present unique challenges to those of us charged with shepherding them through higher education, especially those of us from the Baby Boom and other, different generational cohorts. As the first truly post-modern generation they were raised in a different social environment and have had very different formative experiences than any previous generation.

To effectively retain and teach them it is incumbent on us to understand who they are and how they got to be the way they are, their unique challenges, and our best methods of teaching and serving.
