2010 Federal Tax Return: 1040 Required?

For the purposes of determining eligibility for the Simple Need Analysis, was the tax filer REQUIRED to file a 1040 instead of a 1040A or 1040EZ?

YES, IF Line 43, Taxable Income is GREATER THAN $100,000* OR YES IF amounts other than zero appear on the following lines:

If none of the above conditions apply, the tax filer was eligible to file a 1040A or 1040EZ but CHOSE to file a 1040 for other reasons. Therefore, the tax filer should answer YES to question 34 (student) or 81 (parent) on the 2011-2012 Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

- The income threshold to file a 1040A or 1040EZ is $100,000. The AGI limit to be eligible for the simplified needs analysis is still less than $50,000. To be eligible for the simplified needs analysis, an independent student or the parents of a dependent student must have an AGI of less than $50,000 AND
- be eligible to file a 1040A or EZ, or not be required to file a tax return OR
 - in 2009 OR 2010, a person included in the household on the FAFSA received benefits from a means-tested federal benefit program (SSI, Food Stamps, Free/Reduced Price School Lunch, TANF, WIC)
- OR
- a PARENT is a dislocated worker

Note: Per HERA 2006 changes, the tax filing status (1040, 1040A or 1040EZ) of a dependent student no longer affects eligibility for simplified needs analysis. Taxpayers who file a 1040 solely to itemize deductions (see line 40 on 1040, page 2 of FAFSA instructions) are considered to be REQUIRED to file a 1040 and INELIGIBLE for Simple Need Analysis. The AGI Threshold for Automatic Zero EFC is now $31,000 or less. See pages 4-6 of "The EFC Formula, 2011-2012" for complete information on the Simplified EFC Formulas and Automatic Zero EFCs..
